Washington Whispers

From a top Pentagon intelligence official: "Leaks of secret information to the press are causing more security problems for the administration than espionage by the Soviet KGB."

Socialist solidarity is not all that prompts Fidel Castro to keep 20,000 Cuban soldiers and 8,000 technicians in Angola. A more important reason, U.S. intelligence sources assert, is cash that Angola's Marxist President Agostinho Neto is paying for Havana's help—in dollars, marks and other hard currencies.
